PREFACE.

The author is gratified to know that he has been able to publish through the kind assistance of many friends, this work on the Baillies of Dunain, Dochfour and other families with a short account of the family of Mackintosh. He is especially indebted to Captain Douglas Wimberley of 79th Cameron Highlanders and an officer at the famous siege of Lucknow, now residing in Inverness, Scotland, and to C. Fraser McIntosh, Esq. of Inverness, himself a descendent of Baillie of Dunain. To Captain Edmund Alexander Baillie, heir of line to the chiefship of Baillie of Dochfour, Dunain and Lamington, a kind friend and kinsman of Filleigh, Chudleigh Jr., Devon, England, he cherishes the kindest feelings for aid furnished.

Many thanks are due Swinton McIntosh Esq. of Darien, Ga., Capt. John McIntosh Kell and Mrs. Kell and Miss Hester Kell a lifelong friend and many others. As to the authority as regards descent of our line from this family would respectfully say that in the old Georgia Gazette are to be found the marriage notices of Colonel Kenneth Baillie's children, one of them Ann Elizabeth Baillie to John Irvine, M. D., as also the will of Colonel Baillie in Atlanta where he speaks of his children and one of them "Ann Elizabeth, now wife of John Irvine, surgeon in Sunbury," and in Court House records in Savannah, Ga., we find Ann Elizabeth Baillie's will to which her husband Dr. John Irvine's name is affixed. In it she mentions her daughter Ann Bulloch and others. The Acts of Trustees "Colonial Records (published) in Ga. Historical Society contain references to Colonel Baillie and show several positions he held and in Atlanta, Georgia, there is a record of the military positions he held during Colonial times as well as his son. The letters from Mrs. Kenneth Baillie and her son Robert Carnibe Baillie, written from Sunbury, Ga., then a rival of Savannah, now a dead town, to their relations in Scotland, present the last link and forge the chain of all the evidence presented as to the descent of the Baillies of Georgia, from that of Dunain and descent of other families in Georgia herein mentioned.

It is to be hoped that the descendants of the Great Sir William Wallace, "Champion of Scotland," and of the illustrious Robert the Bruce, King of Scotland, may imitate their example and continue to live noble lives.

So great has been the pleasure of acquaintance with Mr. Alexander Baillie and so pleasant has been the thought that the author is descended from Baillie of Dunain, that he has added Baillie to his name.

.. BAILLIE ..

The very ancient and noble family of Baillie of the Baliol blood has contributed to make history, and were a powerful and an eminent family in the early days of England and Scotland, closely related to the Kings, John and Edward Baliol, but eventually siding with the Scottish king, David, II. It would appear also that the name was changed from Baliol to Baillie to escape the wrath of Edward First of England, who was so incensed against the Baliol name, and also to distinguish them from the kings of that name to whom they were closely related, and who had bestowed favors upon them, for there can be no doubt as to the name being the same, and their being of same stock. It was also doubtless for same reasons that the arms of Baliol—the Catherine wheels—were changed to a like appearing coat of six mullets, changed afterwards to nine mullets or five pointed stars and took as supporters two Boars rampant, as seen in the Arms at the head of this chapter, also that for the above reasons a brother of King John Baliol assumed the name Richard de Baliol le Scott, whose daughter married as his second wife Lawrence Washington.

We find in the list of the companions of William the Conqueror, the name of Guillaume Belet, also that of Renaud de Bailleul and the name De Bailleul and in the Role of Battle Abbey the names Bailif and Belet.

There seems to be little doubt that their position was greatly augmented in the reign of William Rufus, 1087-1100, for in this reign we find Guy de Bailiol, who had a grant from the Crown of the barony of Biweld in county of Northumberland. He was succeeded by his son Barnard de Bailio', a military commander of reputation, who fought at the battle of the Standard, 1138, in which King Stephen of England gained a victory over King, David of Scotland. He seems to have been an eminent man, and baron of his day and time, and is supposed to have been the founder of Barnard Castle on bank of Tees. He married Agnes de Pinchein and had Eustace de Baliol, baron of Biweld who had besides others, Hugh de Baliol, who succeeded to the Barony of Biweld and had the Lordship of Hiche in Essex, granted him by Henry, Second. He was a warrior of note and had:—

- I. John de Baliol, founder of Baliol College, ancestor of King John Baliol.
- II. Alexander Baliol, or de Balio of Cavers, Grand Chamberlain of Scotland.
1. John de Baliol founder of Baliol College married and had:—
 1. Alexander de Baliol;
 2. Hugh Baliol, died, 1269.

Alexander de Baliol married and had:—

1. John Baliol, King of Scotland;
2. Alexander Baliol;

3. Richard de Balio le Scott, who was an eminent man of powerful family, and changed his name to Scott. One of his daughters married as second wife Lawrence Washington, ancestor of George Washington, and consequently the Washingtons of America are of the Baliol blood.

John de Baliol, founder of Baliol College, had a brother Alexander de Baliol, baron of Cavers, who was in 1292 Grand Chamberlain of Scotland, and from this eminent man, the Baillies of Lamington, Dunain, and all of the name in Scotland descend.

His son, Sir John de Baliol, of Hoprig and Penton, was one of the commissioners on the side of the Scots, who met at Berwick, in 1292, with King Edward First of England to hear the claims of the competitors for the crown of Scotland. His son William de Balliolo or Sir William Baillie of Hoprig. Penston and Carnbrae, married Marion the only daughter and child of the renowned and celebrated champion of Scotland, Sir William Wallace, son of Sir Malcom Wallace of Eldersly. Sir William Wallace had married at Lanark church, Marion Braidfoot, a ward of the Crown, and heiress of Lamington. Sir William Baillie and Marion Wallace had a son Sir William Baillie, a great favorite of King David the II, who preferred to adhere to the side of the Scottish king rather than to the side of his near kinsman, Edward Baliol, who became king of Scotland, for which David when he gained the Crown rewarded Sir William Baillie highly.

This Sir William Baillie, II of Hoprig son of Sir William de Baliol or Baillie, and Marion Wallace, married Isobel Seton, daughter of Sir William Seton and Catherine Sinclair, daughter of Sir William Sinclair, Lord of Herdmandstone, son of Henry Sinclair, Earl of Orkney, descended from the earls of Stratherne, Orkney, and the Royal House of Norway. Sir William Seton was a son of Sir Alexander Seton, by a daughter of Cheyne of Straloch, and Sir Alexander was a son of Sir Christopher Seton (executed in London in 1396 along with Nigel Bruce), who married Christian, sister of Robert and Nigel Bruce, and daughter of Robert Bruce, Earl of Carrick of the Royal House of Scotland. Thus then do the Baillies of Lamington, Dunain, Dochfour, Bagbie and Culter Allers descend from the illustrious houses of Wallace, Bruce, Sinclair and Seton.

Sir William Baillie, II of Hoprig and Lamington and Isobel Seton had the following issue:—

- *1. Alexander Baillie, 1st Baron of Dunain; married Catherine Grant, daughter of Sir Duncan Grant, chief of the Grants.
- *2nd. David Baillie, fled to Ireland, settled at Innishargie (founder of Ringdufferin branch.)
- *3rd. John Baillie, went to Anglesea, and is ancestor of the Pagets, earls of Anglesea.
- 4th. Sir William Baillie, 3rd of Hoprig and Lamington seems to have had large grants of lands and is designated Dominus de Hoprig, married Catherine, daughter of Sir John Hamilton of Cadzow, of the ancient, distinguished, noble and princely line of Hamilton.

*NOTE.—It would appear that these Baillie brothers had inflicted punishment upon a priest for an indignity offered a sister of theirs for which they had to flee for their lives from the Ecclesiastical authorities thus leaving a younger brother William at home, who succeeded to Lamington. The eldest of these brothers Alexander Baillie heir to Lamington went to Inverness settled there and became head of the Dunain family, and his branch is now the rightful heir to chieftainship. The younger branch failed no less than five times in male succession, the present Lord Lamington being of female descent.

5th. Daughter, married the ninth earl of Sutherland.

Sir William Baillie and Catherine Hamilton had two sons and two daughters.

1st. William Baillie, his successor.

2nd. Alexander Baillie from whom were descended the families of Carnbrow and Carfin.

3rd. Margeret Baillie, who married John Earl of Sunderland, and had a son John, from whom descended the family of Sunderland.

4th. Marion Baillie, married to John Third Lord Summerville.

Sir William Baillie, fourth of Hoprig and Lamington, son of the proceeding proprietor, was a great favorite of James third of Scotland, and was a prominent gentleman of his day. He married Marion, daughter of Sir Patrick Hume of Polwarth, a son or descendent of Hume of Wedderburn. They had four sons and two daughters.

*1st. Andrew Baillie.

*NOTE.—As the present Lord Lamington claims to be head of the family it is just as well to examine into this matter: It would seem that his line failed no less than five successive times the eldest of line being eventually a daughter Margeret Baillie who married a Maxwell and who took the name of Baillie. The Maxwell-Baillie line also failed in male line and was succeeded by Carmichael and so on and eventually 5th by Cochrane who prefixed Baillie to his other names and was finally created Peer and changed the order of his names to Cochrane-Baillie.

In consequence of Alexander Baillie having to flee, his youngest brother Six Wm. Baillie who remained at home inherited the Lamington estate, which by right belonged to Alexander Baillie, the eldest son. Sir Wm. Baillie had a son Sir William the fourth of Hoprig and Lamington, whose son Andrew succeeded to Lamington and just here the eldest line of the younger branch failed and soon after went to a female, and (Ross Dundas Wishart) Cochrane-Baillie is now Lord Lamington. Some claim Lamington came through the Seton line.

As to the Cadet branch of Richard Baillie tho' in male line they can not assume to the chiefship as they were also of a junior line so that the ancient family of Baillie of Dunain the *George (U. S.) line having died out in male line or entirely disappeared, is really vested in that of Baillie of Dochfour who is the head of Lamington, Dunain and Dochfour.

*There are numerous descendents of Baillie of Dunain in U. S. in female line.

2nd. Richard Baillie, ancestor of Baillie of Bagbie, Culter Allers and ancestor of Robert Baillie who went to Georgia and married Nancy McIntosh daughter of John More McIntosh, and of his brother Alexander Baillie, who married Anne daughter of Col. William McIntosh of the Revolutionary War, son of John More McIntosh.

The McIntoshes descend also from Baillie of Dunain, consequently the Harrises of Milledgeville, Ga., and the Kells of Sunnyside, Spalding Co., Ga., (among whom is Capt. John McIntosh Kell, Adjutant General of Ga.,) descend from both Baillies of Dunain and Lamington.

The Spaldings, Kenans, and Harrises also descend from Baillie of Dunain.

3rd. Sibella Baillie, married Mr. Edmondstone.

4th. Helen Baillie, married Mr. Henderson, of Fordel.

Besides these there were two other sons whose names were not mentioned. Sir William Baillie had also Cuthbert Baillie ancestor of Baillie of St. John's Kirk and of Jerviswoode.

BAILLIE OF DUNAIN.

The ancient honorable and well-known family of Baillie of Dunain was founded by Alexander Baillie, eldest son of Sir William Baillie of Hoprig and Lamington, who married Isobel Seton daughter of Sir William Seton and Catherine Sinclair, daughter of Sir William Sinclair of Herdsmandstone, probably a brother of Earl Henry Sinclair of Orkney. Sir William Seton, was son of Sir Alexander Seton by a daughter of Cheyne of Straloch and Sir Alex. Seton was a son of Sir Christopher Seton, who married Christian Bruce, sister of Robert Bruce, King of Scotland. Sir William Baillie of Hoprig and Lamington was the son of Sir William Baillie and Marion Wallace, the only daughter and child of Sir William Wallace, Champion of Scotland, and thus the Baillies of Dunain descend from the ancient families of Baillie of Hoprig and Lamington of the de Bailleul or Baliol blood, and from the renowned Wallace, the Royal House of Scotland, and the ancient families of Sinclair and Seton.

Alexander Baillie, the eldest son of Sir William Baillie of Hoprig and Lamington and Isobel Seton, was rewarded by his cousin the Earl of Huntley, for his bravery in the battle of Brechin, 1452, with the barony of Dunain and other castle lands near Inverness, and thus did this illustrious scion of an ancient and noble family of undoubted royal descent, become the starting point of the eminent family of Baillie of Dunain, Dochfour, Redcastle, and other lines, who besides their own intrinsic worth, furnishing to the service of the country men of eminence, members of Parliament, officers to the army, among whom may be mentioned, William Baillie Provost of Inverness, and member of Scotch Parliament, Cols. John and William Baillie of the Honorable East India Service, Commissary John Baillie, Comptroller Baillie, and other men of note. And not alone in Scotland and England did this family contribute their sons to the welfare of the country, but in America and elsewhere the name is found, for as early as 1735, we find Kenneth Baillie of the Dunain family, an ensign in the Darien Company of Rangers in Georgia, who went out on an expedition with Gen. Oglethorpe against the Spaniards in 1740 to Florida; was captured by them and sent to Spain, from whence he escaped to England and returned thence to Georgia, where he became a prominent man and leading citizen, one of the trustees of town of Sunbury, then a rival of Savannah, and successively Lieutenant, Captain, Major, and Colonel, of the Second Southern regiment in service of the Colony, and also a County officer and one of the landed proprietors. His eldest son was Lieut. in his father's regiment, 6th of May, 1766, and his third son Robert Carnibe Baillie, a Lieut. in the Third South Carolina Regiment, who was killed at the siege of Savannah in October, 1779, while bravely storming the ramparts of the enemy, and thus we see the Baillies of Dunain taking a prominent part in the formation of America in Colonial and Revolutionary periods, the father, a Colonial officer of note serving the King, the son taking part in founding the great Republic, both of them contributing to the settlement and foundation of this great country, and ably and faithfully representing their ancient name. Though extinct now in male line in America, it is represented in Georgia by the families of Bulloch, Irvine and others, and in England by the prominent branch of Dochfour, of which Evan Baillie of Filleigh, Chudleigh, Devon, England, is the chief and head of both families. The Baillies of Dunain, besides their illustrious, noble and royal descent, from the Bruce and the Wallace, also descend directly from the chief of the Grants, the Roses, Barons of Kilravock, connected with many of the best families in the Highlands, the most ancient and highly honorable families of Munro of Foulis and Milltown, the Forbes of Culloden, an offshoot of Tolquhon consequently descended from Lord Forbes, the Keiths, Earls Marischal, the Earl of Angus, the Royal House from Robert Third, the Earl of Douglas, Cummys of Badenoch, and again the Baliol blood from King John Baliol, and they also descend from Sir John Forbes a man of eminence, and Elizabeth Kennedy of Denure, and from the Chisholms of Comar, who descend from the Royal stocks of Norway and Scotland, and from the de la Ards, barons of the Ard, and earls of Orkney and Caithness, and the McKenzies of Coul, and the McKenzies barons of Kintail, McKenzies of Tarbat, Gairloch, Red Castle, earl of Seaforth, McLeans, McDonalds of Moidart and Glengarry, Frasers and others, as one can prove who wishes to avail himself of historical research, when it will be found to be one of the best families in the country. Alexander Baillie, first baron of Dunain, married Catherine, daughter of Sir Duncan Grant, Chief of the Grants, and had issue:

I. William Baillie.

II. Alexander Baillie.

William Baillie married and had issue: Alexander Baillie who had:

1. David Baillie, married fourth daughter of Rose of Kilravock.

2. Thomas Baillie, of Corsehall.

David Baillie married the fourth daughter of the ancient and noble house of Rose, barons of Kilravock, a family allied to, and descended from the best blood of the Highlands of Scotland.

The issue of this marriage was:

1. Alexander Baillie.
2. William Baillie, Lord Provost of Inverness, and member of the Scotch Parliament.

Hon. William Baillie, Fourth Baron of Dunain, married Catherine, daughter of the ancient family of Munro of Foulis, a family noted for the services rendered in the wars and of much prominence.

William Baillie and Catherine Munro had:

1. Alexander Baillie, who married Catherine Munro, of the old family of Milltown (from whom descended the celebrated Drs. Munro, Primus, Secundus and Tertius, renowned professors and surgeons in Scotland.)
2. James Baillie.
3. John Baillie.

Alexander Baillie and Catherine Munro of Milltown had:

1. William Baillie, married about 1710 Elizabeth Forbes, daughter of Duncan Forbes, provost of Inverness, and first of Culloden, who descended from the Forbes of Tolquhon and through them from Lord Forbes, the Earl Marshall and Robert the III. Duncan Forbes married Janet, daughter of James Forbes of *Corsindae of a family also

*FORBES OF CORSINDAE.

The first laird of Corsindae of the Forbes family was Duncan Forbes 2nd son of James 2nd Lord Forbes.

- I. Duncan Forbes married Christian Mercer daughter of the Provost of St. Johnstone (i. e. Perth) and Laird of Ballar and had:

descended from Lord Forbes, and the Mercers of Ballar, Lumsdens, Gordons of Craig, and Lesmoir, Forbes of Tolquohon, and Mortimers of Cragievar.

2. David Baillie of Dochfour. His father bequeathed to him, 1657, the lands of Dochfour, and Easter and Wester Dochairn. He married first in 1629 Janet Patterson and had no issue. He married second in 1669 Margaret, a daughter of Hugh Fraser, eighth Lord Lovat, and had Alexander Baillie, second of Dochfour, who married in 1730, Hannah, daughter of Fraser of Relig, widow of James Grant of Shuglie and had issue. (See Dochfour.)

3. Catherine Baillie married Col. Hugh Fraser of Kinneries.

William Baillie and Elizabeth Forbes had:

1. Alexander Baillie, Ninth of Dunain, married Jane McKenzie.
2. William Baillie Commissary of Inverness.

1. William Forbes who married Margaret Lumsden daughter of the Laird of Couland and had:
2. James Forbes 3rd. of Corsindae married Janet, daughter of Wm. Gordon, Laird of Craig of Auchindoir (who died 1555) and had:
1. William Forbes who married Janet Forbes daughter of William Forbes of Tolquohon by Elizebeth daughter of George Gordon of Lesmoir and thus in three lines do the Forbes of Corsindae, through Lord Forbes, Forbes of Tolquohon and Gordon of Lesmoir descend from the Royal House of Scotland.

William and Janet Forbes had:—

- I. James Forbes who married Catharine Mortimer of Cragievar daughter of Laird of Cragievar and had;—
1. Wm. Forbes married daughter of Fraser Laird of Strichen.
2. Janet Forbes married in 1610 Duncan Forbes, of Culloden Provost of Inverness of Tolquohon family and had issue:—
1. John Forbes married Anna Dunbar.
2. Elizabeth Forbes married Wm. Baillie, of Dunain.

John Forbes and Anna Dunbar had:—

- I. Duncan Forbes married Mary Innes and had:—
1. John Forbes married Jean Gordon.
2. Duncan Forbes Lord President married Mary daughter of Hugh Rose of Kilravock and had:—
- I. John Forbes of Culloden.

3. Mary Baillie, married, 1656, William McIntosh, Third of his House, and Third in descent from William McIntosh First of Borlum, second son of Lachlan Mor McIntosh, 16th Chief of the clan McIntosh, and Bessie Innes of Innermarkie, cadet of Innes of Innes, and of the Royal blood of Scotland. From this marriage of Mary Baillie of Dunain to William McIntosh, the great family of McIntosh of Ga. descend, as do also the Spaldings, Clinches, Harrises, Kenans Wyllys, Kells, and others of Georgia, all well-known families. The Kells, and Harrises being also descended from Alexander and Robert Baillie of the Bagbie or Culter Allers family who came to Georgia before the Revolution and married into the McIntosh family. Alex. and Robt. Baillie were of the line of Baillie of Bagbie and Culter Allers cadets of Baillie of Lamington, so that the Kells and Harrises are descended from both Baillie of Bagbie and Baillie of Dunain, and in their veins flow the blood of the great Wallace, the Royal house of Scotland, and the McIntosh who descend from the celebrated thane of Fife McDuff.

Alexander Bailie. Ninth of Dunain married Jane, seventh daughter of Sir Kenneth McKenzie of Coul baronet, descended from the McKenzies barons of Kintail. Sir Kenneth McKenzie married Jane Chisholm, daughter of The Chisholm, a family twice descended from Royalty, and thro' the de la Ards from the earls of Stratherne and Orkney and Kings of Norway. The Chisholm also descend from the McKenzies of Gairloch, Tarbat, Red Castle, Applecross, and the Earl of Seaforth, the McIntoshes, McDonalds of Moidart and Glengarry, McLeans, Frasers, and others.

Alexander Baillie, Ninth of Dunain and Jane McKenzie had:—

1. William Baillie, married first Mary, daughter of Provost William Duff, married second. Helen, daughter of Commissary Baillie.
2. Anne Baillie, married Grant of Glenmorriston.
3. Christian Baillie, married, June 27th, 1710, George Grant of Clurie.
4. John Baillie in Torbreck married Catharine Dunbar and had Elizebeth b Oct. 7, 1710.
5. Mary Baillie married Grant of Cluny.
6. Kenneth Baillie married 1702 Isobel Chisholm, daughter of Chisholm of Comar (The Chisholm of Royal blood) Contract of marriage 1702 at which her brother John Chisholm of Comar was witness to contract. She was living long afterward and deeds mention her as having had children, one of these was Kenneth Baillie who went to Georgia probably with his kinsman, John More McIntosh, for in 1735 we find him ensign in Darien Co. of Rangers in Georgia, Trustee of Town of Sunbury, Major, Captain and Colonel of 2nd Regiment.
7. Jean Baillie married Dec. 18, 1718, John Baillie son of the Comptroller.

William Baillie and Mary Duff had:

1. William Baillie.
2. Mary Baillie who married her cousin John Baillie, son of Commissary William Baillie who was son of William Baillie and Isobel

Forbes and brother of Alexander Baillie IX of Dunain and of Mary Baillie who married William McIntosh.

William Baillie, Commissary of Inverness, married and had:

1. John Baillie married Mary Baillie, daughter of William Baillie and Mary Duff.
2. Helen Baillie who married William Baillie (after the loss of his first wife Mary Duff), whose daughter by Mary Duff married John Baillie his second wife's brother.

William Baillie, after the loss of his first wife, Mary Duff, married Helen Baillie and had:

1. Alexander Baillie married July 2nd, 1737. Annie, daughter of Sir Archibald Campbell by Annie McPherson of Cluny. (Letter to him from Robert Carnibe Baillie, son of Colonel Kenneth Baillie of Georgia.)
2. David Baillie, store keeper at Fort. Augustus.
3. Magdalen Baillie married June 5, 1731. (His second wife), Sir Archibald Campbell of Clunes, second son of Sir Hugh Campbell of Cawdor.

Alexander Baillie and *Lady Annie Campbell had issue:

- I. William Baillie, born Oct. 1739, Colonel in Hon. East India Co.
- II. Archibald Baillie, born Sept. 20, 1740.
- III. John Baillie, colonel in Hon. East India Company, married and had:
 1. William Baillie, Fourteenth Laird of Dunain and last in direct line.

*Letter to her from Mrs. Kenneth (Elizabeth) Baillie, written from Georgia, in which she thanks the Lady of Dunain for kindness shown her children while in Scotland.

2. Catharine Baillie married Colonel Hugh Rose of Kilravock and who received with a niece the property of Dunain, the last Laird having died without issue and thus failed the last of the direct Lairds of Dunain to have issue. The line of Colonel Kenneth Baillie of Georgia would now be the rightful heirs to the chieftainship, except that his line in male line is extinct. The estate of Dunain is now owned by James Bruce Baillie, though the representative of the family of Dunain, who is now the rightful chief of Lamington, Dunain and Dockfour is Evan Baillie of Filleigh, Chudleigh, Devon, England, whose eldest son is Captain Edmund Alexander Baillie of Manor House, Trent, Sherborne, England.

We will now follow up the Georgia line who kept up the prestige and descent of the family in Georgia, the first of them being Colonel Kenneth Baillie, son of Kenneth Baillie and Isobel Chisholm of Comar. The latter Kenneth was a son of Alexander Baillie IX of Dunain and Jane, daughter of Sir Kenneth McKenzie of Coul, and thus the ancient line of Baillie of Lamington and Dunain, the representatives of so many ancient and noble families, of the Royal House of Scotland and the representatives of the great Wallace, was represented in America in the person of Kenneth Baillie and his descendants. Colonel Kenneth Baillie probably came to Georgia with his kinsmen the McIntoshes as at their abode in the Province, we find Kenneth Baillie an ensign of the Darien Georgia Company of Rangers in 1735. He went upon the military expedition in 1740 with General Oglethorpe against the Spaniards, was captured, sent to old Spain, escaped to England, returned to Georgia and was successively lieutenant, captain, major and colonel of the Second Southern Colonial Regiment, and one of the trustees of the town of Sunbury, then the rival of Savannah, but now a dead town, and a county officer and a man of prominence in the colony and one of the land owners. planters and foremost men owning a plantation called Baillie's Island, and his daughter, Mrs. Irvine, a plantation called Dunain. His son, Kenneth Baillie, was a lieutenant in Second Regiment, and another son, Robert Carnibe, lieutenant in Third South Carolina Regiment of Colonial line, killed at the siege of Savannah, October, 1779, while at the head of his company in a charge. Lieutenant Baillie had a presentiment of his fate, but, nothing daunted, bid his friends adieu and went into the fight like a brave, chivalrous scion of an ancient race. Such then is the part taken by this branch of the Baillies of Dunain in the settlement of Georgia. Col. Kenneth Baillie married Elizabeth Mackay and had the following children:

- I. Kenneth Baillie, Lieutenant Second Regiment.
- II. Alexander Baillie.
- III. Robert Carnibe Baillie, Lieutenant Third South Carolina Regiment.
- IV. Ann Elizabeth Baillie, married Dr. John Irvine.
- V. Jean Baillie, married Andrew Darling.

Ann Elizabeth Baillie born September 27, 1749, died July 23, 1807, daughter of Col. Kenneth Baillie and Elizabeth Mackay, married at Sunbury, Liberty county, Georgia, September 5, 1765, Dr. John Irvine (son of Charles Irvine, laird of Cults. and Euphemia Douglass daughter of John Douglass laird of Tilquhillie and Agnes Horn daughter of James Horn Vicar of Elgin and Isobel Leslie daughter of John Leslie of Pitcapel).

Ann Elizabeth Baillie and Dr. John Irvine had the following children:

I. Charles Irvine born July 22, 1766, died November 30, 1803, married September 27, 1789, Elizabeth Darling his first cousin who died November 7, 1793, and had issue one son to live:

1. John Robert Irvine baptized March 8, 1790. Charles Irvine was member of the Liberty County, Independent Troop, a noted body of troops.

II. Euphemia Irvine born March 14, 1768, died July 14, 1768.

III. Anne Irvine born January 14, 1770, married first, April 13, 1786, Captain James Bulloch of the American Army (eldest son of Archibald Bulloch, president of Georgia, 1776, who married Mary, daughter of Honorable Colonel James De Veaux, senior judge of Kings Court in Georgia, in 1760: and Anne daughter of Richard Fairchild and Anne, daughter of Edmund Belinger, first Landgrave, or Earl of the name in South Carolina) Anne Irvine married second James Powell of a prominent family in Georgia but had no issue by him.

By Captain James Bulloch she had:

I. John Irvine Bulloch married Charlotte Glen.

II. James Stephens Bulloch married first
*Hester Elliott second Martha Stewart.

III. Jane Bulloch married John Dunwody.

IV. Anne Bulloch.

*Hester Elliott was daughter of U. S. Senator John Elliott, Martha Stewart, was daughter of General Daniel Stewart of the Revolution.

- IV. Robert Irvine born January 4, 1772 died soon after.
- V. Robert Irvine born February 15, 1773; died November 17, 1773.
- VI. Jane Irvine born January 15, 1775; married first Alexander Farquharson of Finzean or Invercauld Scotland; married second James Smith of Darien Georgia, no issue.
- VII. Margaret Irvine born February 23, 1777; died July 26, 1813; married Rev. George Ladson December 7, 1809 and had issue.
- VIII. John Irvine born March 8, 1779; died August 30, 1781.
- IX. Alexander Irvine born at Cattle Park, an estate near Savannah, Georgia, July 4, 1781; married June 19, 1806; Sarah Ann Wingate grand-daughter of Governor Caswell of North Carolina, and had issue. (See Irvine).
- X. Kenneth Irvine born December 3, 1783; died November 16, 1814; married June 21, 1804, Jane Euphemia Darling Baker, his cousin. He was member of Liberty Independent Troop, Naval Officer, etc.
- XI. Elizabeth Irvine, born January 18, 1786; married first Mr. Thomas Baillie, December 17, 1805; married second, Mr. Powell June 23, 1813.
- XII. Sophia Irvine, born November 26, 1787; married William Evans January 6, 1803; died February 19, 1857, no issue.
- XIII. Isabel Irvine, born July 1, 1791; married July 13, 1809, Mr. Cuthbert; died November 2, 1812, and had issue:

John Irvine Bulloch, attorney at law, clerk of U. S. District Court, eldest son of Captain James Bulloch and Anne Irvine, mar-

BAILLIE OF DOCHFUR.

This eminent branch of Baillie of Dunain descends from David Baillie, second son of Alexander Baillie, seventh Laird of Dunain and Catharine Munro of Milltown, and is most certainly a family of importance, for beside its own descent from the ancient and noble family of Baillie of Dunain, and the Baillies of Lamington, of the de Bailleul or Baliol blood, it has contributed men of rank and of high standing to the army and to the Parliament of Great Britain, among whom may be mentioned General Sir Evan Baillie, General Charles Baillie, Colonel Alexander Baillie, Colonel Hugh Duncan Baillie, Evan Baillie, Member of Parliament for Bristol, James Baillie Esq., Evan Baillie of the army and also Member of Parliament for Bristol, and others who have served their country and added additional honor to the name. Its connection to noble and gentle families in England and Scotland also attests its importance, and shows it to be one of the families of first rank among those ancient and honorable families of the Realm. There can be no doubt that this line of David Baillie of Dochfour now represents and rightfully takes precedence in the male line of the ancient families of Baillie of Dunain, and Baillie of Lamington and that Evan Baillie of Filleigh, Chudleigh, Devon, England is the rightful Laird and Chief of the entire line, and should his son Alexander Baillie of Trent, Sherborne, Dorset, fail of heirs male of this line, that the family of James Bruce Baillie who owns Dochfour and who belongs to a junior branch of Baillie of Dochfour, will be entitled to the chieftainship, and to bear the supporters to the Coat of Arms which at present Mr. Evan Baillie alone has the right to use.

David Baillie, second son of Alexander Baillie, seventh Laird of Dunain, was the first Laird of Dochfour. His father bequeathed to him in 1657 the lands of Dochfour and Easter and Wester Dochain. He married first in 1629 Janet Patterson and had no issue. He married secondly in 1669 Margaret daughter of Hugh Fraser, eighth Lord Lovat and had:

- I. Alexander Baillie married in 1709 Hannah, daughter of *Fraser of Relig, and widow of James Grant of Shuglie and had the following issue:

1. Hugh Baillie of Dochfour married in 1730 Emilia Fraser of Relig.
2. Wm. Baillie of Rose Hall, Sutherland married Robina Mackay.

*NOTE—FRASER OF RELIG (OR RULICK).

This ancient family nearly related to Lord Lovat appears to have held this property in 1430.

- I. Alexander Fraser of Rulick married in 1601 a daughter of Wm. Douglas of Earls Mill and had a son (1) Alexander Fraser of Rulick who held both estates and Wester Moniach. He married Catharine daughter of Wm. Mackenzie of Sildoch and had a son and daughter:
1. James of Rulick who died in 1722 and married daughter of Fraser of Auchnagoin:
2. Emilia Fraser married Hugh Baillie of Dochfour.

James Fraser of Rulick, was born in 1713, and died 1755, son of preceding James married Margaret daughter of Edward Satchchoule of Warwickshire and had Edward Satchchoule Fraser of Rulick born in 1751, and died in 1835, and in 1782 married Jane third daughter of Wm. Fraser of Balmain and had James Baillie Fraser born in 1783, and who married Jane Fraser, daughter of Lord Woodhouslie. He was succeeded by his widow Jane Fraser who was succeeded by Jane Anne Catharine Fraser, her sister-in-law and sister of James Baillie Fraser. She was born 1797, married Phillips Afflect Fraser third son of James Fraser of Culdathiel and had James Fraser, born 1820, died 1889, married Emma Jane daughter of Major Owen Grey twentieth regiment and had:

1. Phillips Afflect Fraser, born 1845, present proprietor.
2. James Baillie Owen Fraser, born 1858.

Colin Campbell married Janet daughter and co-heiress of the Honorable ‡Hugh Mackay of

*NOTE.—See tombstone in the Grey Friars burying place, Inverness. Colin Campell of Glenure was murdered by the Clan Stewart a member of which Clan, Allan Brecht Stewart, was tried and executed for it, but the tradition in the family is that they hung the wrong man. See Stevenson's novel, "Kidnapped."

†NOTE.—James Baillie died during the lifetime of his elder brother Alexander at whose death the Dochfour estate passed by a testamentary trust deed to Evan the third son.

‡NOTE.—MACKAY OF BIGHOUSE.

This ancient family descended from the very old family of Mackay of Strathnaver, a family descended from the Lord of the Isles and one from which the Lords Reay have descended, the celebrated General Hugh Mackay and others who have served their country so well. The first

Bighouse, Member of Parliament for Horsham, brother of fourth Lord Reay, died
September 7, 1793.

III. Evan Baillie, of Dochfour, married Mary daughter of Peter Gurley.

CHISHOLM.

The ancient family of Chisholm (The Chisholm) descends from the Earl of Athole, the last representative of Donald Bane, King of Scotland, and this family is one of the early Celtic families of old Scotland. We also see that this family descends from the Kings of Norway through Harald and that Robert de Chisholm married a daughter of Sir Henry Lauder and had a son, Robert de Chisholm, from whom descended Alexander de Chisholm who married Margaret de la Ard, domina de Erchless, daughter of Alexander de l' Ard and Matilda, only daughter by his first wife, of Sir Malise Sparr who married a daughter of the Earl of Orkney, daughter of Earl Rognwald who died 1158, son of Einar, Earl of Orkney, son of Rognwald, Earl of Moeri, by Hilda, daughter of Rolf Naefia. Rognwald, Earl of Moeri was son of Eystein Glumre of Royal line of Norway. Sir Malise Sparr and the daughter of the Earl of Orkney had Malise, Earl of Stratherne, Orkney and Caithness whose daughter Matilda de Stratherne married Weyland de l'Ard, Baron of the Ard, and had a son Lord Alexander de l'Ard, whose daughter Margaret de l'Ard, domina de Erchless, married Alexander de Chisholm and had Thomas de Chisholm, whose son Wiland de Chisholm acquired the lands of Comar. Thus we see this ancient family is descended from the Kings of Scotland, Norway, and the last Stratherne Earl of Orkney, as well as from the ancient family of the Ard and that beside all this noble and royal line of descent they descend from the old family of McIntosh, and therefore the celebrated thane of Macduff, as also the McKenzies of Gairloch, Tarbat, Red Castle, Earl of Seaforth, the McLeans, McLeods, Grants, Frasers, McDonalds of Moidart and Glengarry, as well as other lines. Jane Chisholm of this ancient line married Sir Kenneth McKenzie of Coul and had beside others Jane McKenzie, who married Alexander Baillie IX of Dunain, and had beside others Kenneth Baillie who married Isabel Chisholm of Comar of same family, and had beside others Colonel Kenneth Baillie, who went to Georgia, became an eminent man, married, it is presumed, Elizabeth Mackay, probably a near relative of Captain James Mackay of Strathy Hall in Georgia, who, there is every reason to believe, was of the ancient family of Mackay of Strathnaver, some of them having gone to Georgia. Col. Kenneth Baillie and Elizabeth Mackay had, beside others, Ann Elizabeth Baillie, born September 27, o. s., 1749, married at Sunbury, September 5, 1765, Dr. John Irvine, son of Charles Irvine of Cults and Euphemia Douglass of Tilwhilly. She died July 23, 1807, and among others left a daughter, Anne Irvine, who married James Bulloch and had issue:

- I. John Irvine Bulloch married Charlotte Glen.
- II. James Stephens Bulloch married Hester Elliott, second Martha Stewart.
- III. Jane Bulloch married John Dunwody.

SETON.

The ancient family of Seaton or Seyton, taking its name from a family who lived in a town by the Sea, is one of the most ancient and noble, gallant and chivalrous families in Scotland, for besides their own noble descent they are directly descended from many of the most noble families in the land, and also from the Royal Houses of Scotland, England, France and Castile, and many are the gallant deeds performed by this royal race, one of whom, was the friend and companion of Mary, Queen of Scots. The first on record of this family was Dugald Seton, who flourished in the 11th century and was succeeded by his son Alexander de Seton, whose son, Philip de Seton, married a daughter of Waldene, Earl of Dunbar, and had Sir Alexander de Seton, who married a daughter of Walter de Barclay, Chamberlain to King William I, and had Serlo or Secher de Seton, whose son was Sir Alexander de Seton, who had Sir Christopher de Seton, who married Christian Bruce, daughter of Robert Bruce, Earl of Carrick of the Royal House of Scotland, descended from the Royal Houses of England, France and Spain. Sir Christopher Seton and Christian Bruce had Sir Alexander Seton, who married Christian, daughter of Cheyne of Straloch, and had Margaret Seton who married Alan de Wyntown, of same line and ancestor of the Earl of Winton. The issue of this marriage was Sir William Seton, 10th Feudal Lord of Seton, who married Catharine St. Clair, daughter or granddaughter of Sir William Sinclair of Herdmandstone, son of St. Clair, Earl of Orkney. This earl married Isabella, daughter of Sir Malise Sparr, Earl of Stratherne, who married Isabella, Countess of Orkney, daughter of Earl Magnus, a descendant of Rogenwald, Earl of Maire & Kandal of the Royal House of Norway, and thus descends "The Lordly line of High Sinclair." Of this marriage of Catharine Sinclair and Sir William Seton, a daughter Isabel was born, who married Sir William Baillie of Hoprig, son of Sir William Baillie and Marion, daughter of the Great Sir William Wallace. Thus united the ancient baronial family of Baillie, to the Wallaces, Setons, Sinclairs, Barclays, Earl of Dunbar, and to the royal houses of Scotland, England, France, Spain and Norway, and therefore in the veins of the Baillies of Dunain, Dochfour and their descendants does the best blood of the land course. Sir William Baillie of Hoprig and Isabel Seton had, among others, an elder son, Alexander Baillie, who fled to Inverness, Scotland, and in 1452 was rewarded by his cousin, the Earl of Huntley, for gallant services, with the barony of Dunain and other rands in Invernesshire. His sister married the ninth Earl of Sutherland, and he, Alexander Baillie, married Catherine, daughter of Sir Duncan Grant, chief of the clan of Grant, and thus was the progenitor of the ancient baronial family of Baillie of Dunain.

George Seton, the first Lord Seton of this line of the Setons, Lords or Peers of Parliament, in contradistinction to the Feudal Lords, was probably a brother of Sir William Seton, the tenth Feudal Lord of Seton, who married Catherine Sinclair. George Seton, first lord, married Lady Margaret Stewart, daughter of John Earl of Buchan and Constable of France, who married Elizabeth Douglas, daughter of Archibald Douglas, the fourth earl, and Duke of Tourairie in France, son of Archibald the Grim Earl, by Joanna, daughter of Randolph Moray of Bothwell, a nephew of Robert Bruce. Archibald Douglas, Duke of Touraine, and fourth Earl of Douglas (descended from the ancient house of the name, and from the Comyns of Badenoch, descended from the Earl of Northumberland and from King John Baliol) married Margaret, daughter of Robert Third of Scotland. George First Lord Seton and Lady Margaret Stewart had John Seton, deceased, before his father, who married Christian Lindsay, daughter of John, Lord Lindsay of Byres and had George Seton Second Lord who married Lady Margaret Campbell, daughter of Colin, first Earl of Argyll, by Isobel Stewart daughter of John Lord of Lorn. The first Earl of Argyll was son of Archibald Campbell, son of Sir Duncan Campbell, by Lady Majory Stewart, daughter of Robert, Duke of Albany. Sir Duncan Campbell was son of Sir Archibald Campbell by Margaret second daughter of Sir John Drummond of Stobhall the latter Sir Archibald Campbell was son of Sir Colin who married a daughter of the Lennox family, and Sir Colin Campbell was the son of Sir Neil Campbell and Margaret sister of Robert Bruce, King of Scotland. Sir Neil Campbell being the son of Sir Colin Campbell who married a Sinclair. Thus does the line of Seton combine the blood of the Douglasses, Comyns, Baliols, Morays, Campbells, Sinclairs and the Royal House of Scotland in many ways. George Seton second Lord, and Lady Margaret Campbell, had George Seton, third Lord, who married Lady Janet Hepburn, daughter of Patrick first Earl of Bothwell, and had George Seton, fourth Lord Seton, who married Elizabeth Hay, daughter of John Lord Hay of Yester, of the ancient and noble family of Hay or De Hay, and had Beatrix Seton, who married Sir

George Ogilvie of Dunlugus, and Laird of Banff, ancestor of Lord Banff of the ancient family of Ogilvie, descended from the Earl of Angus, and other lines also probably from the Sinclairs, Earls of Orkney. Sir George Ogilvie and Beatrix Seton had Janet Ogilvie, who married William Forbes of Tolquohon, and had among others Thomas Forbes of Watertown, who married Jean, daughter of David Ramsay of Balmain, son of William Ramsey and Miss Strachan, son of Sir John Ramsay, Lord Bothwell. Of this union, among others, was Grizel Forbes, who married John Douglass of Tilquhillie, and of most ancient, noble and royal blood, descended from the Douglasses of Dalkeith, Princess Elizabeth, Abernethys of Salton, Grahams of Fintry, Erskines of Dun and other noble lines. John Douglass of Tiluhilly and Grizel Forbes had John Douglas, who married Agnes Horn, daughter of James Horn, Vicar of Elgin, and Isabel Leslie, daughter of John Leslie of Pitcapel, who married Agnes Ramsay Balmain. John Douglass and Agnes Horn had among others: Euphemia Douglass who on June 7th, 1733, married Charles Irvine of Cults, son of Robert Irvine and Margaret Coutts, son of John Irvine of Murthill, by a daughter of Irvine of Fortrie, son of Gilbert Irvine of Colairlie, and Jean Menzies of Pitfodels, son of Alexander Irvine of Drum and Elizabeth Ogilvie. Charles Irvine of Cults and Euphemia Douglass had among others: Dr. John Irvine who went to the colony of Georgia before 1765 and there married Ann Elizabeth Baillie, daughter of Colonel Kenneth Baillie of the Dunain family, and had Anne Irvine, who married Captain James Bulloch, of illustrious lineage, and had beside others John Irvine Bulloch, eldest son, who married Charlotte Glen, daughter of Chief Justice John Glen and Sarah, daughter of Dr. Noble Wymerley Jones, and had Dr. William Gaston Bul-loch, a distinguished surgeon and physician, and had:

I. Joseph Gaston *Baillie Bulloch.

II. R. H. *Bolton Bulloch.

III. Emma Hamilton *Gordon Bulloch, and others dead.

Joseph Gaston Baillie Bulloch married Eunice Helena Cloud Bulloch and had:

1. Archibald Irvine De Veaux Bulloch.

2. William Gaston Glen Bulloch.

3. Douglass Eugene St. Cloud Bulloch.

It will be seen that the Bullochs of Georgia, beside their own honorable descent, descend from the Baillies of Dunain, Douglasses of Tilquhillie, Irvine of Cults and Drum, with all their ancient, noble and royal lines of descent, such as the Douglasses, Setons, Campbells, Wallaces, Sinclairs, Earls of Orkney, Gordons of Lesmoir, Forbes, Ogilvies and many others.

SOCIETY.

SIR WILLIAM WALLACE AND MARION BRAIDFOOT.

To the Editor of "Society:"

SIR:—Referring to some remarks in your issue of the 1st inst., lately brought to my notice, on the lineage of the late "First Baron Lamington," I shall feel obliged if you will permit me to make the following observations:

Lord Lamington was the descendent of the illustrious Sir William Wallace, and it is correct to say that "by descent of inheritance" to her property, he was the representative of Marion Braidfoot, who was married to Sir William Wallace, and by the marriage of their only child with William de Baliol of Hoprig, Penston, and Carnbrae (father of the First Sir William Baillie) brought the Lamington estates, to which she was heiress, into the Baillie family, but it is misleading, if not actually incorrect to say that Lord Lamington succeeded by "an unbroken inheritance," because not only was Lord Lamington not considered at the Herald's office to be a Wallace, as you observe, but neither was he, correctly speaking, a Baillie, inasmuch as his descent was only through the female line, and that broken no less than five times. But before deciding on Lord Lamington's title to be considered "the representative of this lady"—Marion Braidfoot—it is to be noted that her great grandson had four sons, Alexander, David, John and William, and that it is from the last named and youngest that Lord Lamington descends, according to Burke and other authorities, whilst the eldest, Alexander, having settled in Invernesshire, had several sons, from whom descended the houses of Dunain, Dochfour and Leys, and has never lacked a male representative to the present day. The eldest branch Dunain, having terminated with the death of the late William Baillie of that ilk, April 4, 1869, that of Dochfour succeeded to the headship, and of that branch the writer, though not the owner of the Dochfour estates, is unquestionably the head, being the great grandson, and now the representative, of Hugh Baillie, third laird of Dochfour, who by his marriage with Emelia Fraser of Relig, had three sons, viz: First, Alexander who died without issue; second, James the writers grandfather, and third, Evan, to whom, through some family arrangement, the Dochfour estates passed, over the heads of James' three sons, James having predeceased his elder brother.

This James married Colin, daughter of *Colin Campbell, of Glenure, by Janet, his wife, daughter and co-heiress of the Hon. Colonel Hugh Mackay of Bighouse, (brother of Fourth Lord Reay) and had three sons and three daughters; (*died September 7th, 1792. See monument in the old Grey Friars' Burial Ground. Inverness).

In virtue of this descent the writer claims the honor of being now the representative of the first Sir William Baillie—son of the William de Baliol, who married the only child of Sir William Wallace and Marion Braidfoot, his wife—and, consequently, to be that lady's geneological representative also, as well as the head of all the Baillies who descend from that marriage, and, as such, entitled (in Scotland) to supporters—"two boars proper"—to his coat of arms. To put oneself thus forward jars harshly with one's sense of modesty, and ill accords with a long life of voluntary retirement; but when an ancient and honorable lineage is in danger of obscurity it seems to the writer, now old, to be less than a plain duty—for his sons' and grandchildren's sake (as also for his brother's and his sons')—to step out for a moment from his seclusion, and subscribe himself, your obedient servant, Evan Baillie, of Filleigh, Chudleigh, Devon, March 10th, 1890.

P. S. The name is first found in its English form, Baillie, in the list of captives made after the battle at Neville's Cross, near Durham, in which Sir William Baillie was engaged on the side of King David II, of Scotland, and taken prisoner with the King in 1346.

Memorandum regarding the Baillies of Dunain, and their relatives in the State of Georgia.

BY

MR. FRASER-MACKINTOSH.

I have read Dr. Bulloch's letters to Captain Douglas Wimberley, with much interest, and am delighted to see with what kindly feeling the descendants of those so long severed from Scotland look to the place of their origin, and to their predecessors.

What is desired by Dr. Bulloch, is to identify his family with that of Dunain and he further wishes that the descent of the Baillies of Lamington and Dunain should be had from the earliest date.

He makes reference to a Mr. James Baillie whom he calls of "Biggar" which is a town not very far from Glasgow, who visited Georgia sometime ago and whom Dr. Bulloch saw but at the time did not take much interest in his genealogy. This was a pity, as this Mr. Baillie who is no doubt the same known as James William Baillie of Culter Allers, took a great interest in, and had much knowledge of the history of the Baillies. I have met and corresponded with Mr. Baillie now deceased, who told me he had been to Georgia and had been chiefly interested in seeking out his connections, the Mackintoshes, chiefly the descendants of John Mor Mackintosh, also my relatives.

For the history of the Baillies from the Conquest down to the late Cochrane Baillie, afterwards first Lord Lamington. Mr. James Baillie drafted a work called "Lives of the Baillies" and issued as a draft in 1872, some copies to such as he thought might assist him to frame a complete and exhaustive work. The copy sent me I herewith lend, to be returned carefully. It is but a draft and so far as I am aware Mr. Baillie did not live to publish a complete work. In this print will be found a pretty full list of the Lamington Baillies, the male line breaking as will be seen on more than one occasion.

In this account as there is only the slightest reference to the Baillies of Invernesshire or Baillies of the North, I proceed to give the lineage of the Baillies of Dunain, the parent stock as contained in a holograph memorandum by Colonel John Baillie, thirteenth of Dunain, who died at Kilkenny in the year 1797, and who, after his return from the East Indies in 1784, interested himself much in the consolidation of the family estates, and collecting materials of their history.

For the sake of brevity except in one or two cases, the names of the respective heads are only given.

In 1452, or about that time, Alexander Baillie, son of Lamington, settled in the North and at Dunain, and married Catherine, daughter of Sir Duncan Grant, Chief of the Grants. Their eldest son, Alexander, dying without issue, the succession opened to the second son William who, in turn, was succeeded by his son Alexander, the third Dunain. This Alexander had two sons, David, his successor, and Thomas, styled of Corsehall, whose issue is extinct. David, fourth Dunain, married the fourth daughter of the very ancient house of Rose of Kilravock. Their children were Alexander, fifth Dunain, and William, sixth, which last succeeded his brother, was Provost of Inverness and represented the Burgh in the Scottish Parliament. William married Catherine, daughter of Munro of Foulis, also a very ancient family, with three sous, Alexander. James and John. Alexander, the younger Dunain, married another Catherine Munro of the family of Milntown in the County of Ross, with at least two sons and one daughter, William, his successor, eighth Dunain, David, first of Dochfour, of whom the present family of Dochfour, and Catherine married to Colonel Hugh Fraser of Kinneries. William the Eighth Dunain married Isobel, daughter of Duncan Forbes, First of Culloden and had two sons, Alex. his successor the Ninth Dunain and William Baillie, Commissary of Inverness, and several daughters, the eldest of whom was Mary, married to William Mackintosh of Borlum 1656, 3rd of his house, and 3rd in descent, from William Mackintosh 1st of Borlum, second son of Lachlan Mor, 16th of Mackintosh, and of Bessie Innes of *Innemarkie, Cadet of Innes of Innes. William Mackintosh and Bessie Innes were married in 1595, and in both, and in their own rights, flowed the blood royal of England and Scotland. Alexander the 9th Dunain married Jane, daughter of Sir Kenneth Mackenzie of Coul. Their children were William, 10th Dunain, John Baillie in Torbreck, Kenneth Baillie of whom afterwards, and two daughters, one married to Grant of Glenmoriston and the other to Grant of Clury. This Alexander predeceased his father. The eldest son William, 10th Dunain, married first Mary daughter of

*NOTE—Sir John Stewart of Lorn and Innermeath had Sir John Stewart, called the Black Knight of Lorn, third son, who married Joanna, Queen Dowager of King James I. and daughter of John, Duke of Lancaster, son of King Edward III, and had Sir John Stewart of Balvenie, who married Margaret, daughter of Archibald, fifth Earl of Douglas.

Sir John Stewart was created in 1457 Earl of Athole. His daughter, Elspet Stewart, married Robert Innes of Innermarkie.

Provost William Duff of Inverness, with one son William who predeceased his father and one daughter Mary married to John, son of Commissary Baillie. By his second marriage with Commissary Baillies daughter Helen, William Baillie had Alexander, 11th Dunain, David Baillie and Magdalen, second wife of Sir Archibald Campbell of Clunes. Alexander, 11th Dunain, married, 1737, Anne, daughter of said Sir Archibald Campbell by Anna Macpherson of Cluny, his first wife, with issue William, 12th Dunain, Colonel E. I. Co. service, died at Seringapatam, 1782, unmarried, John, also Colonel, who succeeded as 13th Dunain, who in turn was succeeded by his son William, 14th and last male of the direct line of Dunain. He died in 1869, and after his death, the estate was inherited and sold by his next of kin, two daughters and a grand-daughter of his sister Katherine, first wife of the late Col. Hugh Rose of Kilravock.

I now revert to Dr. Bulloch's account. He states that a Kenneth Baillie emigrated to Georgia in 1735 with General Oglethorpe, and that his first wife's name was Elizabeth, that he had sons Kenneth, Alexander and Robert Carnibe Baillie, also daughters, one married to Mr. Andrew Darling, that his widow had a plantation called "Dunain", and Kenneth's family were accounted as being of the Scottish Dunain's and also connected with the Chisholms.

The papers in my possession connected with Dunain have been examined, and without being able to establish the propinquity so sufficiently as to satisfy a Court of Law, yet the result has certainly been to connect the family in Georgia with that of Baillie of Dunain in Scotland.

I make the Kenneth Baillie who emigrated to have been, son to the Kenneth Baillie before mentioned, younger son of Alexander, the 9th Dunain. Kenneth Baillie's contract of marriage, dated 17th and 22nd December, 1702, exists. He is described as brother-german to William Baillie of Dunain and he William and John Baillie in Torbreck, are described as his, Kenneth's, brother-german and cautioners for him. The lady was Isobel Chisholm, daughter of the late Alexander Chisholm of Comar with consent to her marriage, of John Chisholm now of Comar, her brother-german. Thus it is certain that Kenneth Baillie's descendants were closely connected with the Chisholms—Dr. Bulloch says that Kenneth, who may for distinction be called Kenneth the Second, died in 1766, and that he was born about 1700. This tallies with his father's and mother's Contract dated 1702.

There is one paper without date but written probably about 1748, in which it is mentioned that Kenneth the First "died in November 1705, leaving behind children of the marriage" establishing that he left children, and that he must have died when they were infants, and to some extent explains why no after reference to to him or his children is found in the papers 1705-1735, but the widow Isobel Chisholm was alive in 1738.

The next paper found is a letter from Mrs. Elizabeth Baillie, dated Sunbury, Georgia, 28th. March 1767, addressed "To the Lady Dunain, by "favour of Mr. Andrew Darling," the usual mode of addressing Mrs. Baillie, wife of the Proprietor of Dunain Estate. The letter speaks for itself and establishes an intimate connection of Dunain with that of the family of her, Mrs. Elizabeth Baillie's, husband. The letter also shows that she had a son-in-law, Mr. Andrew Darling, and the letter must have been handed by him to Lady Dunain, for it is not marked with the name of any packet or Post Office. It may be mentioned that the letter is not in the handwriting of Elizabeth Baillie, merely signed by her, and the signature denotes the writing of a middle aged, educated lady.

Next is an important letter from Robert Carnibe Baillie to Alexander Baillie of Dunain, whom Robert calls "uncle" although it may have been addressed and used only as an affectionate appellation towards an elderly relative standing to him, Robert, while in Scotland in loco parentis. Alexander had no brother leaving male issue, though his father (William) was Robert's great uncle. The letter which is addressed "To Alexander Baillie Esq., of Dunain, N. Britain," came by "the Dwarf" packet, and through the post, is holograph of Robert and dated Sunbury 3, February, 1770, also speaks for itself. It would appear that Robert had returned from Scotland, and judging from the large sprawling hand it would be taken for that of a schoolboy, sent to Scotland for his education were it not that he refers to his father-in-law indicating his being a married man. Robert refers to his mother, brother, and to two sisters, each with two children, all corroborative of Dr. Bulloch's information regarding the family, and indeed the particularity of his second name "Carnibe" would serve to identify him among thousaunds. This name I take to be a proper one, and although I never heard of it otherwise, conclude it is either the name of a plantation in Georgia, or the surname of one of the many emigrants who accompanied General Oglethorpe and named Carnibe who formed an intimacy with Kenneth Baillie the Second. Copies of these letters are herewith sent for Dr. Bulloch's use and retention, and I am happy to think that his views are completely made out.

Dear Uncle:

I arrived at Savannah after a passage of two months and two weeks, but I kept my health very well ever since I left Scotland, and I hope all of you are the same. We were three days coming from Scotland, and just luckily, as we were going up the Thames, we saw Captain Anderson's ship lying ready to sail in the afternoon, but as luck happened, I got on board the ship. I did not go further than Gravesend, and so I lost the sight of London, but I thought myself much luckier to catch the ship. I staid about three days at Savannah before I went home and when I went there none of them knew me but Mr. Darling. My sisters have two very good children, each. My father-in-law is very kind to me and he will do good to me, for which I am much obliged to him for it. Dear uncle, I hope you'll send me word if you hear from any of your sons, how they are. You'll give my compliments to Mr. and Mrs. Duff, and all enquiring friends. My mother is much obliged to you and your lady for your kindness to me while I was in Scotland. My mother, brothers, and sisters, join me in their love to you and all your family.

I am, dear uncle,

Your affectionate nephew,

(Signed) ROBT. CARNIBE BAILLIE.

Sunbury, the 3d February, 1770.

P. S. You'll tell Frank that I am very well. I am put with Mr. Darling and Mr. Munro in Sunbury for to be a merchant.

(Copy letter from Mrs. Elizabeth Baillie, Sunbury in Georgia, to the Lady Dunain).

Madam:

The uncommon civility my children received from my husband's friends, and particularly your family, lays me under the greatest obligations, such as I fear, I can never have in my power to retaliate in so remote a corner of the world as this.

As the opportunity of my son-in-law Mr. Darling's going home, I thought I could do nothing less than acknowledging your kindness, and begging you would please accept of a pattern silk herewith sent. With my kindest love to you and family believe me, dear madam,

Your much obliged servant,

WILL OF KENNETH BAILLIE, ESQ.

In the name of God. Amen, I, Kenneth Baillie, of the Parish of St. John in Province of Georgia, Planter, being weak in body, but of sound mind and memory, thanks being given to God. Therefore, calling to mind the morality of my body and that it is appointed for all men once to die, do make and ordain my last Will and Testament, that is to say, principally and first of all I recommend my soul into the hands of Almighty God who gave it, and my body to the earth to be buried in decent Christian burial at the discretion of my Executors, nothing doubting, but at the general resurrection I shall receive the same again by the Mighty Power of God. And as touching such wordly Estate, wherewith it had pleased God to bless me in this life, I give, devise and dispose of the same in the following manner and form, after all my lawful debts and funeral charges are paid:

Imprimus: I give and bequeath unto my loving wife, Elizabeth, a part of my personal estate, a negro wench named Hesthes and her issue, and the one half of house and kitchen furniture, including silver plate, to her and her heirs and assignees forever.

Item: I give and bequeath to my eldest son, Kenneth Baillie, this other part of my personal estate, a negro boy named Cuff, and the other half of my house and kitchen furniture, including silver plate, with my guns, pistols, sword, watch, buckles and wearing apparel to him, his heirs and assigns forever.

Item: I give and bequeath to my said son, Kenneth, four hundred acres of land joining Palmer Golden, a part of a tract my rice plantation is now settled on, and one hundred acres timber land joining the said four hundred acres Stephen Clark, as also two lots in Sunburry joining James Stewart Taylor, to him, his heirs and assigns forever.

Item: I give and bequeath to my son, Alexander Ballie, this part of my personal estate, a negro boy named Joe, to him, his heirs and assigns forever, as also one silver hilted sword.

Item: I give and bequeath to my said son, Alexander, one hundred acres of swamp land joining his own marsh, and the four hundred acres, foresaid, bequeathed to my son, Kenneth, as also one hundred acres timber land joining my own said tract and Stephen Colors, to him, his heirs and assigns forever—with and under the restrictions following:

Item: I give and bequeath to my son, Robert Carnibe Baillie, this part of my personal estate, a negro boy named January, to him, his heirs and assigns forever.

Item: I give and bequeath to my said son, Robert, five hundred acres of land lying and situated on North Newport, adjoining lands of Mathew Roch, Stephen Clark and Samuel Burnley, to him, his heirs and assigns forever.

Item: I give and bequeath to my said sons, Kenneth and Alexander, one thousand acres of land lying and situated on Saint Mary's. To the said Kenneth eight hundred acres, and to the said Alexander two hundred acres to them their heirs and assigns forever.

Item: It is my will that my sons shall enter upon and possess the above said bequeathed lands at twenty-one years of age. But if my executors shall judge them capable to manage and cultivate the said bequeathed premises at the age of eighteen, that then they may enter and take possession of the said premises, but shall have no power to sell, dispose, alienate or assign over to any person or persons whatever, any part or parcel of the above said lands until they shall arrive at twentyone years of age.

Item: It is my will that if of my sons should die before they come of age that their lands shall be equally divided amongst the surviving brothers.

Item: It is my will that the island that I now live on, commonly called Baillies Island shall be sold after my decease, with all convenient speed to the highest bidder, and the money arising therefrom be applied as follows, viz: To Elizabeth Baillie, my wife, the sum of fifty pounds sterling, free of all expense, to enable her to build a dwelling house and office houses, on that part of my estate bequeathed to my son Alexander, now a part of my rice plantation. To Jean my daughter wife to Andrew Darling, merchant in Sunburry the sum of fifty pounds sterling, free of all expense, as also to Ann Elizabeth Baillie, my daughter, wife to John Irvin Surgeon in Sunburry, the like sum of fifty pounds sterling, free of all expense, and further my will is that the overplus shall be applied for the education, clothing and maintenance of my said sons Alexander and Robert as far as my executors shall think necessary, but if any one of my said two youngest sons should die before they come of age that then the surviving brother shall enjoy the whole, and further it is my will that Elizabeth my wife shall live in the house and on the plantation where I now dwell until it is sold—and further my will is that the overplus arising to my said two youngest sons, shall be put in safe hands to bear interest and in such manner as it may be convenient to raise such sum or sums as shall be thought proper for their expense by my executors. The overplus to be paid when they are of age.

Item: I give and bequeath to my two daughters, to Jane, a negro girl called Cloe, and to Ann Elizabeth, a negro girl called Doll, part of my personal estate, I give to them their heirs and assigns forever.

Item: It is my will that the one half of the lands bequeathed my son Alexander where my rice plantation now is, shall be cultivated for the benefit of him and his brother Robert until the said Alexander becomes of age.

Item: It is my will that my said wife Elizabeth shall upon the sale of my island settle and enter upon the other half of the land above mentioned and bequeathed my son Alexander, to cultivate for her own use all the days of her natural life.

Item: It is my will that the first bequeathed lands to my son Kenneth shall be cultivated for the benefit of the whole estate untill my lawful debts and funeral expenses are all paid, and under the management of my said son Kenneth and the rest of my executors.

Item: It is my will and desire that my executors shall give and appoint my said wife Elizabeth a yearly maintenance as they shall think sufficient until my debts are paid, and also my will is that providing my island is not sold before the division of my personal estate, that my wife Elizabeth shall cultivate and improve the same for her own use until such time as the said Island is sold.

Item: It is my will that all the residue of my personal estate shall be equally divided betwixt my wife and five children after my lawful debts are paid as above mentioned, lastly I do by these presents appoint and ordain my wife Elizabeth Baillie executrix, my eldest son Kenneth Baillie, Andrew Darling, Captain James MacKay and Robert Baillie my executors to this my last will and testament, revoking and annulling all other will or wills by me at any time afore made, acknowledging this as my last will and testament. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and cause my seal to be affixed this seventh day of July, Anno Domini, one thousand seven hundred and sixty-six.

KENNETH BAILLIE,

{ L. S. }

Signed, sealed, published, declared by the testator as his last will and testament in our presence who have signed our names as witnesses in his presence and by his desire in presence of each other.

MACKINTOSH.

TOUCH ME NOT BUT WITH A GLOVE.

This most illustrious and ancient family thrice royally descended in its own right, that of Innes and of Baillie of Dunain is so well known in Scotland, and in Georgia and the United States so great were the services performed that the state of Georgia, named one of its counties McIntosh. Among members of this old family may be mentioned John Mohr McIntosh who came to Georgia in 1735 with Oglethorpe and with him went on the expedition against the Spaniards. His sons Colonel William McIntosh and the gallant General Lachlan McIntosh, and his grandson, Colonel John McIntosh of the Revolutionary War, who was first Captain and then Lieutenant Colonel John McIntosh, afterward, General, in the War of 1812. Colonel James Simmons McIntosh of Mexican War. His sons, Generals James McQueen and John Baillie McIntosh of the

C. S. and U. S. armies. Judge McQueen, Captain John Nash McIntosh, Major Lachlan McIntosh and also the gallant Captain now General John McIntosh Kell, and many other descendants of this family, who have taken part in every war since the foundation of the State of Georgia. The families descended from this family are the Clinches, Troups, Kells Spaldings, Wyllys, Kenans, Sadlers, Harris' a branch of the Bryans and many others. William McIntosh (second son of Lachlan Mohr McIntosh 16th. Chief of Mackintosh and Agnes McKenzie (daughter of MacKenzie, of Kintail ancestor of Earl of Seaforth.) married about 1594 Elizabeth Innes daughter of Robert Innes of Innermarkie, an old cadet of Innes of that Ilk, and died about 1626 having several children one of whom was Lachlan McIntosh second proprietor of Borlum, who married first Lady Anne McIntosh, relict of Sir Lachlan McIntosh, of Mackintosh and secondly, tempore, 1636 Helen Gordon by whom he had issue; among others Wm. Mackintosh, third of Borlum, who married in 1656 Mary Baillie, eldest daughter of William Baillie, eighth of Dunain, and Isobel Forbes, daughter of Duncan Forbes, first of Culloden, and had among others:

- I. William Mackintosh, the celebrated brigadier of 1715, married Mary Reade.
- II. Lachlan Mackintosh, of Knocknagail, who married Mary Lockhart, daughter of John Lockhart, Bailie of Inverness and had sons and daughters, one of whom was: John Mohr Mackintosh, lineal Chief of Borlum, branch of House of Moy, who came with 130 Highlanders to Georgia and settled a place called Darien, where the family has lived for a long period. John Mohr Mackintosh was in the Spanish War, 1740, and his kinsman, Lieutenant Kenneth Baillie, was captured by the Spanish, sent to Spain, escaped to England, and thence returned to Georgia. From a brother of John Mohr Mackintosh sprang the noted "Rory" or Roderick Mackintosh, as also General Wm. Mackintosh, his grand nephew, who married a Creek Indian woman whose son, a Creek Chief, was killed by them because he ceded lands to the whites in Georgia. From another grand-niece of John Mohr Mackintosh, who married George Troup, sprang the well-known Governor of Georgia, George Mackintosh Troup, from whom descends the Troups and a branch of the Wayne family of Georgia, as also Dr. Troup who left descendants.

It is also interesting to know that from the marriage of Wm. Mackintosh, of Borlum, and Mary Baillie of Dunain, through the family of Brigadier McIntosh, an uncle of John Mohr Mackintosh, springs Lachlan Mackintosh, third son of Brigadier Wm. McIntosh, whose daughter, Elizabeth, married Hon. Isaac Royal of Milford, Boston, Massachusetts, whose daughter, Elizabeth Royal, married Will Sparhawk, afterward Sir. W. Pepperell, Baronet, whose daughter, Elizabeth Royal Pepperell, married Rev. Henry Hutton, M. A., and had Rev. Henry Hutton, and Harriet Pepperell, who married Sir Charles Thomas Palmer of Wanlip Hall, Leicestershire, and had Sir George Joseph Palmer, Baronet, born 20th Dec., 1811. From John Mohr Mackintosh also descends the well-known family of Clinch, of Georgia, and many others.

William McIntosh 3rd of Borlum (son of Lachlan McIntosh and Helen Gordon, the latter a grandson of Lachlan McIntosh 16th Chief of the great clan of McIntosh,) married Mary Baillie of Dunain and had among others.

*NOTE—It is said that Commodore McIntosh and Miss Maria were the children of General Lachlan, and half brother and sister. According to Swinton McIntosh they were children of the nephew Lachlan, of General McIntosh. It is certain Miss Maria the authoress was daughter of General Lachlan McIntosh and that the commodore was son of Lachlan, third son of Col. William McIntosh, †NOTE—The Kells and McQueens, McIntosh's authority says Miss. Maria was the daughter of General Lachlan McIntosh.

‡NOTE.—Or Jane Mackay.

§NOTE.—Member of Congress.

*The Spaldings are of Scotch extraction and were Lairds, or Feudal Barons of Ashantilly and sat in Scotch Parliament, prior to discovery of America.

In 1473, July 21, we find John Spaldyn, dean of Brechin and vicar of the parish church of Dundee.

The James Spalding who married Marjory McIntosh daughter of Col. William McIntosh, was son of Thomas Spalding, a captain in a regiment of "Stewart Highlanders," and was drowned in Holland while in service.

Randolph Spalding, second son of Hon., Thomas Spalding M. C. by his wife Sarah Leake had:

Thomas Spalding married Miss McKinley.

Bourke Spalding married Ella Barrow.

Sarah Spalding married Mr. McKinley.

Bourke Spalding and Ella Barrow had one son living.

1. Randolph Spalding.

BARROW.

Mrs. Bourke Spalding is a sister of Hon. Pope Barrow an eminent lawyer, formerly U. S. Senator and now Vice President of the "Sons of the Revolution" of State of Georgia. Mrs. Spalding and Hon. Pope Barrow are the children of David C. Barrow Esq., son of James Barrow who was son of Thomas Barrow which latter was the son of Thomas Barrow. The original Thomas Barrow came from Lancashire, England to Virginia in 1680. Thus we see this ancient family has kept up its prestige and is ably represented at the present day. On all sides its connection is highly honorable. There are other children and descendants of the Barrow family, and Hon. Pope Barrow has other brothers. He married Cornelia Jackson, second marriage daughter of former United States minister,

*NOTE.—Hale's Annals of Scotland, No. 2.

General Henry R. Jackson of ancient family and descent, and has issue by both marriages.

WYLLY.

This is an old Georgia family and the name is found in the records of Ireland as far back as 1666, and though we have not a description of the Arms of Wyllly we understand it is in possession of them.

Before the Revolutionary War the family lived in Georgia.

There were three brothers, Alexander, William and Richard and a sister who married Hon. James Habersham son of Gov. James Habersham and Mary Bolton. The descendants of this family are numerous and highly connected people.

Alexander Wyllly was a major in the British army and Speaker of Commons House of Assembly. Richard was Colonel in the Continental Army, and his nephew Thomas a lieutenant. The family of Major Alex. Wyllly adhered to the crown. Among these were Thomas Campbell Wyllly. One of this family married a daughter of James Spalding and from him descends Mr. Charles S. Wyllly and others. One of them married a daughter of Dean Dunwody by a daughter of Gov. McDonald. Major Thomas S. Wyllly married Eugenie LeHardy daughter of Dr. J. C. LeHardy, an eminent physician and Health Officer of Savannah, descended from the Viscount Le Hardy. Dr. LeHardy married Miss Daniell daughter of the noted physician, Dr. Daniell and Miss Screven daughter of Dr. J. P. Screven.

 1. Charles Williamson
 2. Emily Williamson.
 3. William Williamson.

Hester McIntosh (sixth child of Colonel Wm. McIntosh, of the Revolution of 1776, and Mary Mackay) married Alexander Baillie of Culter Allers, (brother of Robert Baillie) of the ancient family of Baillie of Lamington, of a cadet branch descending from Richard, son of Sir Wm. Baillie of Lamington.

Hester McIntosh being descended from Baillie of Dunain, the chief line of Lamington, both of these, Culter Allers and Dunain, descending from the Great Sir Wm. Wallace and Robert Bruce, Earl of Carrick of the Royal line of Scotland.

†NOTE.—Died 1883.

Hester McIntosh and Alexander Baillie had an only daughter:

- I. *Marjory Spalding Baillie, who married John Kell, Esq., Attorney at Law, of Sunbury, Georgia, son of John Kell, who in a list of "attainted" by the British, is called in the "Disqualifying Act" John Kell, gentleman.

The Baillies of Culter Allers also descend from the noble families of Hamilton of Cadzow, of royal descent, the ancient family of Hume of Polwarth, &c.

John Kell had a sister, Mary, who married Mr. Holmes, and his mother married a second time Judge Advocate Rees, from whom the Rev. Eben Rees and others descend.

John Kell and Marjory Spalding Baillie, daughter of Alexander Baillie and Hester McIntosh, had the following issue:

- I. John Kell who commanded the Steamer Everglade, changed to "Savannah," early part of War, then went to take position of first lieutenant and executive officer of C. S. War Vessel Sumpter, then to take same place on Alabama and was on her when she was sunk by U. S. S. Kearsage. Came home and commanded an Iron Clad at Richmond on James River, and now he is Adjutant General of Georgia, and recently made Brigadier General of State. He married, Oct., 1856, Julia Blanche Munroe,

*NOTE.—Think her name was Hester McIntosh, but as Mrs. Spalding her aunt brought her up; presume she took the name Marjory Spalding. The Kells are thought to have come from County Meath, Ireland, and to be of Scotch-Irish blood, though some think they are of Welsh extraction. Judge Kell of Baltimore, Maryland, whose daughter was the wife of Bradford, Union Governor of Maryland, during Civil War, claimed relationship—his father and family were native Welsh people a descendant of Campbell Munroe, who married a daughter of King Robert Bruce. The children of this marriage were:

1. N. Munroe Kell, died age 6 years.
2. John McIntosh Kell, M. D., died, age 22 years.
3. Blanche McIntosh Kell, died age 3 years.
4. Raphael Semmes Kell married, 1897, Pauline Ellis.
5. Marjory Baillie Kell, died, age 7 years.
6. Hendley Varner Kell married, 1897, Caro Dowdell.
7. Sarah Tibbie Kell married, 1891, J. Wingfield Nisbet.
8. Hester Estelle Kell married, 1897, E. H. Davis.
9. Evelyn Spalding Kell.
10. Mary Carolyn Kell.

The other children of John Kell and Marjory Spalding Baillie were:

- II. Ballie Kell.
- III. Evelyn Kell married Charles Spalding.
- IV. Hester C. Kell.
- V. Mary Kell, the eldest.

*Lachlan McIntosh (second son of John Mohr McIntosh, the Highland chieftan and captain of a company of Highlanders who went with Oglethorpe to fight the Spaniards at Fort Moosa,) was a gallant general in the Revolutionary War and a Brigadier in Washington's Army of the Continental line.

By first marriage to Miss Sarah Threadcraft he had:

- I. Henry McIntosh, died young.
- II. William McIntosh, died young.
- III. Hampden McIntosh, married Caroline Clifford Nephew.

*NOTE—Mr. Wm. Harden has kindly sent the following communication

Hampden McIntosh and Caroline Clifford Nephew, had:

1. Mary McIntosh married Mr. Winston.
2. ——— McIntosh married Mr. Bacon.

Frederick Hampden Winston son of Mary McIntosh and Mr. Winston is in right of General McIntosh, member of Society of Cincinnati, and in right of John Mohr McIntosh, member of Society Colonial Wars and also member Sons of American Revolution thro' being descended from General McIntosh.

in extract of a letter from Hon. Jno. E. Ward and also adds:

"Hon. John E. Ward, in a letter of May 20th, 1893, in which he gave the record of his relationship to the McIntosh family, as follows:

"In reply to your note of the 18th inst., just received, I beg to say my father, Wm. Ward, married Miss McIntosh, the daughter of Major Lachlan McIntosh, and she was my mother. After her death, he married Sarah Maxwell, the daughter of Moultrie Maxwell, of Bryan County, Major Lachlan McIntosh, after the death of my mother's mother, married the widow of John Butler Maxwell who was the mother of my aunt Maria McIntosh, she being the half sister of my mother, formerly Annie McIntosh."

"This will give you, I think, all the information you want. In looking into this matter some time ago I found a little difficulty which I have never been able to get over. Apparently there were two Majors Lachlan McIntosh, and I cannot trace out their descent. It appears from Mr. Ward's statement, which is absolutely correct, that one of these majors married first a lady whose name Mr. Ward does not know, as I asked him the question and he replied that he did not know, and after her death he married the widow, Mary Maxwell. Now, from the old newspapers I find a Major Lachlan McIntosh who married the widow of Capt. Clement Nash, and another marriage of Major Lachlan McIntosh (who may be the same one) to a daughter of William Maxwell of Hester's Bluff."

General Lachlan McIntosh married twice. First, Sarah Threadcraft, by whom he had issue. He married second, Mrs. Mary Maxwell, daughter of James Maxwell, and widow of Jno. Butler Maxwell, her first cousin. By the latter marriage he had Maria McIntosh, the authoress, and a daughter married Jones. General Lachlan McIntosh had also James Mackay McIntosh, U. S. Navy.

According to Hon. John E. Ward his mother was Anne McIntosh, who married his father, Wm. Ward.

Wm. Ward married second Sarah Maxwell, daughter of Moultrie Maxwell and Margaret Stevens.

Lachlan McIntosh, son of Col. William, married first a Baillie; married perhaps second the widow of Captain Clement Nash, and another major, perhaps his son Lachlan, married a daughter of Wm. Maxwell of Hesters Bluff.—[AUTHOR.]

*NOTE—He was married twice.

IV. Hetty McIntosh, m. 1st. Ward, 2nd Dr. Bayard.

V. Catharine McIntosh married Harris.

By second marriage General McIntosh had:

1. Maria McIntosh, Authoress.
2. Ann McIntosh married Jones.

Hampden McIntosh had one son who died and two daughters, Mrs. Winston and Mrs. Bacon, from whom descend the Winstons, Mrs. Wakelee, Mrs. Falligant, Mrs. Bevill and a branch of the Mellis.

Catharine McIntosh married Harris and had:

1. Charles Harris.
2. Sarah Harris married Mr. Bayard.

Hester McIntosh and Mr. Ward had:

1. Jno. E. Ward, Minister to China.
2. ——— Ward.
3. Daughter.

Hester McIntosh and Dr. Bayard had:

1. Mrs. Wilson.
2. Mrs. Ecker.

*The McIntoshes descend from Shaw living in 1163, second son of Duncan McDuff, third Earl of Fife.

*NOTE—The following record was taken from the family Bible of Gen. Lachlan McIntosh, and by him copied from the Bible of John McIntosh, (Mohr.) This Bible of Gen. Lachlan McIntosh is now in the possession of Mrs. W. L. His wife remained behind him in Scotland, but he married in America and left descendants. [It is not mentioned whether the second marriage in America was during the lifetime or after the death of his first wife.] By his first wife he had an only daughter, who, though twice married, left no issue, and died in 1840.

The male representation of the family of Mackintosh, of Mackin tosh, is in the family of Angus Mackintosh, eldest son of Lachlan Mohr Mackintosh, who married Lady _____, daughter of the Earl of Argyle, and had issue, through whom descends the present family of Mackintosh, of Mackintosh, and the male representation of the family of Mackintosh, of Borlum has devolved on the heirs male of Lachlan Mackintosh, styled of Knochnagail, second brother of Brigadier Mackintosh, if any such exist and can establish their propinquity.

Mr. Charles Fraser Mackintosh, of Drummond, represents the family of Borlum through Duncan Mackintosh, third brother of Brigadier Mackintosh; and Mr. Aeneas Mackintosh, of Raigmore, M. P., represents, through Joseph Mackintosh, fourth brother of Brigadier Mackintosh.

This notice of the Mackintoshes of Borlum was furnished to Mr. J. W. Baillie, of Culter Allers, Lanarkshire, Scotland, great great-grandson of John Mohr Mackintosh, by Mr. C. F. Mackintosh, of Inverness. The parts within brackets have been added to Mr. Mackintosh's manuscript by Mr. Baillie.

DUNWODY.

This ancient name is found in Scotland at an early day, among the feudal Barons or Laids, though the name is there spelled Dunwiddie in the Acts of Scotch Parliament. The first of the Georgia branch was John Dunwody, of Londonderry, Ireland, whose descendant, Dr. James Dinwiddie, or Dunwody, came from Pennsylvania to Liberty County about 1770, and was one of the first physicians to practice in Liberty County, Georgia, and was member of the first Executive Council of Georgia as a free state. He married Esther (daughter of Mr. Dean and Miss Marion of the Marion family of South Carolina, and widow of Benjamin Splatt), and had:

- I. Esther Dunwody, married to U. S. Senator John Elliott, whose daughter, Hester, married Maj James S. Bulloch, and had:
 - I. (Captain James Dunwody Bulloch.)
 - II. Col. James Dunwody, a State Senator, who married Miss Smith (daughter of James Smith of Darien, Ga. and Miss Munroe) and had, among others:

1. Dean Dunwody, married to Miss Macdonald (daughter of Governor Macdonald of Georgia), and had issue.

III. John Dunwody, married to Jane Bulloch (daughter of James Bulloch, Jr., and Ann Irvine and sister of John Irvine Bulloch and Maj. James Stephens Bulloch).

Dr. James Dunwody died in 1807. His son, John, died in 1858.

In the Georgia Gazette Dr. Dunwody is styled Dinwiddie.

Jane Bulloch, daughter of *James Bulloch, Jr., and Anne Irvine was married to John Dunwody, Esq. (sec-

*NOTE—James Bulloch, Sr., was born in Glasgow, Scotland, a highly educated man and said also to be a minister, was in South Carolina in 1729. He was in 1735 Justice for Colleton county. In February 28, 1741, "that a special commission was granted to James Bulloch, Esq., as agent to the Creeks, under Great Seal. "On November 14, 1754, he was member of South Carolina Colonial Assembly or Legislature." The following notice appeared in South Carolina Gazette: The Subscriber proposing to remove entirely into Georgia offers for sale property, etc. "See also Hammerton's Secretary's Record and Accounts." He was Justice of Christ Church Parish in Georgia, October, 1767, and member of Provincial Congress, 1775. See Stevens' Hist. & White's Hist. Coll., of Georgia.

III. Christiana Bulloch, married Hon. Henry Yonge, one of "His Majesty's Council."

President Bulloch married Mary, daughter of Hon. Colonel James DeVeaux.

In will of Archibald Stobo he speaks of his son-in-law, James Bulloch, and others.

There is every reason to believe that the Bullochs of Georgia descend from Donald Balloch McDonald, a descendent of Donald, Lord of the Isles. President Bulloch and Mary DeVeaux had:

I. James Bulloch (Captain), married Anne, daughter of Dr. John Irvine and Ann Elizabeth, daughter of Col. Kenneth Baillie.

II. Archibald Stobo Bulloch married Sarah Glen.

III. Jane Bulloch married Jas. B. Maxwell.

FANNIN.

This ancient family is descended from an Irish nobleman, whose two sons, Edmund and James Fanning, emigrated to North Carolina. When the Revolutionary War broke out Edmund, the elder of these brothers, remained loyal to Great Britain, commanded a British Regiment and after the War was made Governor of Nova Scotia and subsequently succeeded to the titles and estates of his father. One of Edmund's daughters married Major Wickham a celebrated lawyer of Richmond Virginia. The younger brother, James Fanning, espoused the cause of the Colonies, and became an officer of high rank. So incensed was he at the action of his elder brother that he dropped the "g" in his name and ever afterward spelled the name Fannin.

Among the descendants of James Fannin may be mentioned Col. James Fannin, who was basely and treacherously murdered by the Mexicans at Goliad. Colonel James Fannin of West Point, Colonel Isam G. Fannin, Augustus and Oliver P. Fanniu, Maj. Abraham Baldwin Fannin, Maj. Joseph Decker Fannin, Jôseph D. Fannin, planter; Abraham Fannin, Collector of Customs, Savannah Ga. These have contributed to the history of this honorable name. Beside these the family is connected to the eminent family of *Fort, and among the other descendants of James Fannin, we may mention the families of Porter, Williams, Wade, Seaborn Johnson, Floyd, Woodson, Foster, Huguenin and others.

James Fannin, son of the "Irish Nobleman," married Elizabeth Saffold and had:

- I. Elizabeth Fannin married Mr. Alison.
- II. Anne Fannin, married Mr. Knapp.
- III. Joseph Decker Fannin, married Betsy Lowe.
- IV. James Fannin, married Miss. Porter.
- V. Jephtha Fannin, married Catharine Porter.

- VII. †Major Abraham Baldwin Fannin, born Nov. 19, 1791. Died Dec. 18, 1851, married Nov. 15, 1821 by Rev. John Howard, Jane

*NOTE—Arthur Fort was member of First Executive Council.

†NOTE.—Major A. B. Fannin's name is found in a roster of a company of troops commanded by Capt. Tomlinson Fort, in which, in a terrific engagement with the Spaniards and Indians, they repulsed the enemy! but lost nearly all their men. This was in Florida in 1812. Think there is a county of Fannin, both in Georgia and Texas named after this illustrious family.

Williamson, (eldest daughter of John P. Williamson, Esq., and his wife Sarah,) and had:

VON HYMERLE.

As the data expected in regard to this family has failed to arrive, would say that this is a noble Austrian family, and that in the later generations no less than three of this family, all brothers, occupied very prominent positions, one as chancellor, diplomat and statesman, besides being eminent soldiers. Madam Baillie's family on mother's side, was an especially good family of Spanish origin, who quartered the same Royal Emblem in their arms as the Spanish Royal family.

The father of Theodore Roosevelt Esq., who married Martha Bulloch, was Cornelius Van Schaack Roosevelt of an ancient Dutch family of New York. He married Margaret Barnhill of Pennsylvania. Anna Roosevelt oldest daughter of Theodore Roosevelt and Martha Bulloch, married William Sheffield Cowles of Farmington, Connecticut, now Lieutenant Commander in the U. S. Navy.

Douglas Robinson who married Corinne Roosevelt, sister of above, is the direct descendant of King Duncan I of Scotland, through the Earls of Athole. The family name was originally Robertson of Struan, but was changed to Robinson in 1705, for political purposes.

- McIntosh County is named after the family of McIntosh.

1784. Ga. Gazette, Thursday, May 20. On Thursday last was married Major Lachlan McIntosh (son of Col. William McIntosh) to Mrs. Mary Nash, relict of Capt. Clement Nash of this state.
1794. Ga. Gazette, Thursday, Feb. 13. Married last Thursday, John Peter Ward, Esq., to Miss Hetty McIntosh, daughter of Gen. Lachlan McIntosh.
1797. Columbian Museum, Friday, Nov. 10. Died, on the 28th of August last, near the middle ferry, on Schuylkill, Mrs. Maria Persiana McIntosh, the wife of Major Lachlan McIntosh, late of Sunbury.
1798. Ga. Gazette, Friday, Jan. 12. Died, on Tuesday last, at Great Ogeechee. Mr. John Butler Maxwell.
1801. Ga. Gazette, Thursday, Feb. 19. Married on Sunday, the 8th inst., in Bryan County, Major Lachlan McIntosh to Mrs. Mary Maxwell, 1809. Will of Sarah Persiana Maxwell, widow of Thos. Maxwell, of Hester's Bluff, Liberty County, Ga., dated July 4. Mentions her grandchildren Mary Persiana McIntosh and Sarah Ann McIntosh, daughters of Major Lachlan McIntosh and Maria Persiana McIntosh.
1823. Will of Mrs. Mary McIntosh, mother of Miss Maria, dated Jan. 4. Property to her daughter Maria J. McIntosh and son John B. Maxwell, and left legacy to "daughter-in-law Hester McIntosh." She evidently meant step-daughter.

Some confusion having arisen in regard to the two Lachlans of McIntosh family the author finds it necessary to make the corrections, as since printing of book he has gotten hold of invaluable data.

Genl. Lachlan McIntosh married only once to Sarah Threadcraft and in will dated Jan. 21, 1802, says "I give and bequeath to my wife Sarah, all that Island call Doboy and says "my youngest daughter, Catherine McCauley Harris, the wife of Charles Harris, of Savannah," "my son-in-law John Peter Ward of Savannah," "my son-in-law Charles Harris," "my sons George and Hampden McIntosh, and my daughter Esther Ward, son Henry McIntosh whom I have amply provided for;" so that the mistake on pages 84-85 is in making him having married twice and placing Miss Maria J. McIntosh and Annie as his daughters who were children of his nephew, Major Lachlan McIntosh. Hampden McIntosh, son of Genl. Lachlan, married Catherine Clifford Nephew and had issue, sons who died without issue and two daughters—Mary McIntosh who married Rev. Dennis Mervyn Winston and had Frederick H. Winston and Susan and Lacy Winston and Maria McIntosh, who married William Mell and had issue—Mrs. Wakelee, Geo. Mell and Mrs. Falligant. Hon. John E. Ward was a son of Wm. Ward and Annie, daughter of Maj. Lachlan McIntosh. Major Lachlan McIntosh, son of Col. Wm. and Mary Mackay, married four times, 1st to Miss McIntosh of South Carolina, who died, married 2nd to Mrs. Nash, who died in Philadelphia in 1779, leaving Lachlan H., James Mackay, Sarah Ann and Hester Alexander; married 3rd Euphemia Baillie, his first cousin, daughter of Mary Ann McIntosh and Robert Baillie. He married 4th Mary Persiana, daughter of Thomas Maxwell of Hester's Bluff and had Mary Persiana and Sarah Ann McIntosh. Mary Persiana McIntosh married Charles G. Jones of N. G. Major Lachlan McIntosh married 5th, on Feb. 8, 1801, Mrs. Mary Maxwell, widow of Jno. Butler Maxwell and daughter of James Maxwell and had Maria J. McIntosh, the authoress. Annie McIntosh, one of these sisters, married Wm. Ward and had Hon. Jno. E. Ward and others. Lachlan McIntosh, the eldest son of Major Lachlan McIntosh, son of Col. Wm. McIntosh and Mary Mackay, was also a major and married Susan Ann Greene Wall, and had:

I. Lachlan McIntosh, who married Miss Ribards.

So to make it more clear and correct all errors, it will be seen that Genl. Lachlan McIntosh only married once to Sarah Threadcraft and had the issue given on pages 84 and 85 except those of 2nd marriage and that Hampden McIntosh was the only son whose issue is living to this day. His daughters were Mrs. Winston and Mrs. Mell. That he, Genl. McIntosh, had a nephew, Major Lachlan McIntosh, son of Col. Wm. and Mary Mackay and that Major Lachlan McIntosh was a major on staff of Genl. Clement Nash during the Revolutionary War and married 2nd time the widow of Genl. Nash and that the said Major Lachlan married also three more times as given, unless it be that Mrs. Nash was Mary Persiana Maxwell, who she probably was. By Euphemia Baillie there appears to have been no issue. It is also now clear that his eldest son was also a Major Lachlan, who married a Miss Wall and had also Maj. Lachlan McIntosh and Genl. Lachlan's sons left no male issue except Hampden, nor did sons of his son Hampden McIntosh.

The confusion has arisen on account of the two Lachlans, uncle and nephew, and on account of two Wards having married into the family. (See pages 75, 76, 84 and 85. The captain there spoken of on page 75 is Major Lachlan McIntosh. It was probably John McIntosh, son of John Mohr who married a daughter of Sir Patrick Houston. On page 100, date of marriage of Jane W. Fannin is wrong as it was much later; and on page 37 Alex. Horatio, Frances Jane and Jane Catherine Ballie are children of David Baillie and Lady Louisa Stewart, the numbers should be drawn out to separate them from brother's children. On page 35 it is stated that Colin Campbell-Mackay and Rosina Berry had no issue, whereas they have two children, a daughter, Mary, and a son, James Mackay, heir of line. On same page read Geo. Mackay of Island Handa. Hettie, daughter of Genl. Lachlan married first Peter Ward, second Dr. Bayard, and has a living descendent, Mrs. Eckard not Eckore.

VON HAYMERLE.

Norbert Von Haymerle, created Chevalier in 1736, married daughter of Von Stetten and had issue:

- I. Wenzel Chevalier Von Haymerle, herr of Libitz, and Landstand of Bohemia, confirmed in the title in 1766 married Maximdiana Von Deim and had Franz, Chevalier Von Haymerle, herr of Ieshnitz, K. K., Agent to the Crown and Councillor to the Ecclesiastical Court. Celebrated as having upset the plot to place a wrongful heir on the throne of Prince Lichtenstein. He married Claudia Von Kronenfels daughter of Wenzel Stephanas Kronenfels K. K. and his wife Teresa Von Ossendorf and had:

Anton, Chevalier Von Haymerle who married Melanie Pontz Von Engelshofen, and had:

1. Micheline Von Haymerle.
2. Franziska Von Haymerle.
3. Elizabeth Von Haymerle married Alexander Baillie Nov. 17, 1855.

PONZ VON ENGELSHOFEN.

The records of this family date from the year 1524. Sigmund Ponz von Engelshofen was made a Chevalier by the Emperor Leopold in 1668, but to be eligible to receive the title he had to show descent from at least four previous generations and it was understood at that time that he was descended from a very noble and ancient family. The first of the family of whom we have particulars was:

Anton Reichsritter Pontz married daughter of Von Magersberg.
von Engelshofen, Fieldmarshal.

REMARKS.

After weighing all the evidence presented in this work the following conclusions have been deduced: That Miss Maria McIntosh was the daughter of General Lachlan McIntosh and that she had a brother or half brother, Commodore James Mackay McIntosh, besides these given. That Hon. John E. Ward was a son of Annie McIntosh; that Hester McIntosh, her sister, married Dr. Bayard and that some other sister married a Jones, and that the Wards, Winns, Bacons and Winstons descend from General McIntosh; and further, that there was without doubt separate individuals—John and George McIntosh—one of whom married, Anne, daughter of Sir Patrick Houstoun. That Lachlan McIntosh, son of Lachlan, son of Col. William McIntosh, married the widow of Captain Nash, and second a Maxwell. All the Darien Wyllys descend from the Spaulding and McIntosh family. That beside Rev. Wm. H. McIntosh and Judge McQueen McIntosh, that Major William Jackson McIntosh had those given in note foot of page 87. That Rev. William McIntosh had those given on same page, whether by a second marriage or first, the author cannot say. Page 76 should read McQueen McIntosh's authority. Col. Kenneth Baillie died July, 1766, same date as will, so he must have been born in 1702-3. His son Kenneth the third, died December 18, 1767.

Mrs. Irvine mentions in her will her plantation of Dunain and Dr. Irvine was executor for Robert C. Baillie. That Rory and Donald, seems not to have left issue.

It should be stated that Mrs. Kenneth (Elizabeth) Baillie married second a Mr. Powell and this is the "father-in-law" Robert Carnibe speaks of in "McIntosh Letter." Mrs. Powell had no issue by her last marriage but leaves property to her grand-children of name of Bulloch, descendants of Col. Baillie (Liberty County Records.)

The author has discovered on pages 87 and 88 an error in marking notes. It was George McIntosh, son of George and Miss Houstoun who was Minister to France from Texas and his father was probably at times called John McIntosh instead of George tho' there was a John McIntosh as well as a George, who were brothers, and sons of John Mohr McIntosh. One of these married a Houstoun.

It would seem that in his younger days Major William Jackson McIntosh was also in navy as well as army.

On page 75 Judge McQueen McIntosh's family lacks the marks—Motto of McIntosh should be: "Touch Not the Cat But With a Glove."
